Building for the future.

Building for the future.

We Built this City

Take a look around you. Many of the industrial, commercial and institutional buildings that grace our northern community's streets and skylines are the result of the skills and talents of members of the Sudbury Construction Association (SCA).

From planning and design to foundation and roof to everything in between, our members are involved in every aspect of a building project. SCA members create thousands of jobs and contribute millions of dollars to the local economy. In more ways than one, they are key contributors to the growth and prosperity of our northern towns and cities.

One Industry — One Voice

Since its conception in 1948, the Sudbury Construction Association has been a powerful advocate for its members.

What started out as an aid to a few general contractors who required labour relations assistance has grown into an organization representing general and trade contractors, manufacturers, suppliers other firms associated with the construction industry.

Today, the SCA is a strong and effective voice for its members at all levels of government, promoting legislation and policy changes that will have a positive impact on the construction industry. The Association works to maintain and promote business decisions and relationships that respect the principles of fairness, ethics and teamwork.

Once completed, Laurentian University's innovative Living with Lakes Centre will be a state-of-the-art "green" building using the latest energy efficient, high performance technologies.
